1. With regards to the questions posed in FTAG reftel:

- does the nature of the case (terrorist bombing) lend itself to a security-intelligence rather than a police investigation?
Yes. RCMP advise that it would be a logical fit given the mandate of the National Directorate of Security (NDS).

- would an NDS investigation supplement or replace a police investigation?

By preference there should be only one investigation underway at any given time-- overlapping or competing investigative processes can interfere with each other.

- can we expect that an NDS investigation could produce evidence which could be used in law court?

Yes, but not a regular criminal court. The NDS has its own prosecutor (known as an attorney general) and system of courts, distinct from the regular criminal system.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] but our understanding, based on consultations here, is that security/intelligence machinery was engaged but did not turn up any information beyond that already widely known, i.e. the identity of the bomber and the vehicle he used.

2. As KANDH notes, 14 months on, there may be little additional reliable evidence to gather. For example, it is quite possible that the members/organizers of whatever IED cell supported and directed the dead bomber have since been killed in [REDACTED] efforts to eliminate such networks.

3. Understanding the importance of progress on this issue, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

5. We would therefore tend to favour use of [REDACTED] reinforced by a visit by RCMP LO and, if appropriate, by additional RCMP-led measures [REDACTED]

SECRET CEO

ref yourtel KANDH0016 29 March

Thank you for report on this subject and for raising our concerns over the investigation with [REDACTED]. We will provide a comprehensive answer early next week following consultations.

[REDACTED] please convey to them these key messages:

- Canada expects GOA to seek evidence and act on it.
- We are not/not in a currently in a position to assess what evidence may exists against any individual; this is GOA's responsibility.
- It follows that we are not in a position to ask GOA to take action in regard to any individual.
- Our repeated request to GOA is to pursue a rigorous investigation, and on the basis of the evidence gathered in that investigation prosecute those responsible for Glyn Berry's murder.

3. With regard to your comment on para 4 of ref tel, upcoming visit to LO will be opportunity to gain a better understanding of the status of the investigation.

[REDACTED] Grateful action addressees provide views on advisability of this option, factoring in the following issues:

- does the nature of the case (terrorist bombing) lend itself to a security-intelligence rather than a police investigation?
- would an NDS investigation supplement or replace a police investigation?
- can we expect that an NDS investigation could produce evidence which could be used in law court?

Grateful views by 021700.
